

I chose Antonelli College because of the program, affordability and location.

I am currently working for Intercommunity Justice and Peace Center. It is a coalition of faith-based organizations and individuals who work together to address concerns focusing on economic justice, women's issues, human rights, racial equality, peace and the environment. I work with people who have or had a family member on Ohio's death row. I ensure they are receiving peer support to advocate for their loved one. I also work with those who have lost a loved one to murder and help with their search for healing and restored life. We are an affiliate of the statewide OTSE and working to end the death penalty in Ohio.
